China Equity Strategy | Asia Pacific

A-Share Sentiment Improves on National Team Buying

A-share sentiment has improved on higher trading volumes and national team buying. We advise a more balanced portfolio approach by adding defensiveness and A-share exposure, while staying nimble and monitoring potential US-China trade talks and/or a step up in China's easing.

A-share investor sentiment improved vs. previous cut: Weighted MSASI and simple MSASI increased 15ppt to 83% and 14ppt to 76%, respectively, vs. the prior cut-off date (March 26). Daily turnover for ChiNext, A-shares, equity futures and northbound increased by 36%, 47%, 116% and 83%, respectively, vs. the prior cut-off date (March 26). RSI-30D dropped 11ppt vs. the prior cut-off date (March 26). Consensus earnings estimate revision breadth remained in negative territory, but the downward momentum has slowed since late Nov-24.

Southbound net inflows continued for the 54th consecutive week (since early Feb-24): Southbound saw net inflows of US$13.3bn over April 3-9, with YTD and MTD net inflows hitting US$73.1bn and US$17.4bn, respectively.

Note: As announced on July 26, 2024, by HKEX, Shanghai Stock Exchange and Shenzhen Stock Exchange, the publishing of Northbound daily purchase and sales data was terminated as of August 19. Northbound daily buying and selling data were last made available on August 16.

Trump administration decided to pause tariff implementation for 90 days for almost all counties but increased tariffs on goods from China to 125%: We believe this makes China's situation more challenging. The tariff tensions will cast further uncertainty on the earnings outlook. The early signs of capex reacceleration led by emerging sectors could be scaled back in light of much greater macro uncertainty on a global basis. Additionally, domestic deflationary pressure could also mount further if external demand slows significantly and more Chinese production needs to look for outlets inwards. As a result, we see downward risk to our base case earnings growth outlook for 2025, despite the latest improved quarterly results from 4Q (China Equity Strategy: 4Q24 Earnings Final Cut for MSCI China – Little Misses; More Uncertainties \(9 Apr 2025\)). Things could start to look visibly worse from 2Q onwards, assuming no major scale-back of tariffs and/or no major Chinese government fiscal policy step-up. On the China macro front, core CPI extended its reflation momentum in March on the back of the consumer trade-in program while PPI MoM weakened.

We advise a more balanced portfolio approach by adding defensiveness and A-share exposure, while staying nimble and monitoring potential US-China trade talks and/or step up in China's easing: In our latest sector allocation report, we upgraded consumer staples to equal-weight, and downgraded IT to equal-weight. And we add Kweichow Moutai and CR Power to our China/HK Focus List. Our shift reflects the uncertainty around tariffs and exacerbated downside risks for macro growth and risk assets globally, and the more resilient nature of A-shares in a comparable historical context. (Read more: China Equity Strategy: Sector Allocation & Focus List Changes – Be More Balanced amid Uncertainty \(9 Apr 2025\))

Key things to monitor: 1) USDCNY to gauge whether Chinese policymakers intend to use the currency to cushion the tariff headwinds; 2) signs of a start to US-China negotiations; 3) any major step-up of policy easing to stabilize domestic growth, especially on the consumption front. (Read more: China Market-Wise: How to position amid sharp US tariff hike \(3 Apr 2025\))

MSASI Methodology

We monitor nine metrics on a regular basis to gauge onshore sentiment

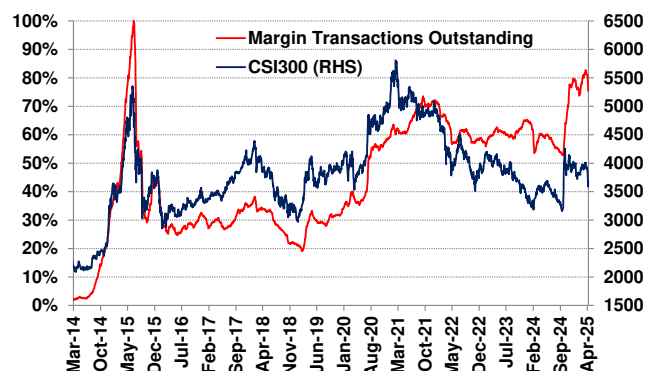

The Morgan Stanley A-share Sentiment Indicator (MSASI) was launched on March 13, 2019, and aims to provide a straightforward quantitative measure to benchmark market sentiment levels. It is compiled based on nine metrics that we monitor regularly, with the belief that they have a certain level of power to indicate sentiment. For background information and methodology regarding MSASI, see China Equity Strategy: Tracking A-share Market Sentiment and Technical Indicators – Launching MSASI \(12 Mar 2019\).

- 1) Margin transactions outstanding: Historical margin financing balance, scaled to 0-100% based on its percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 2) New investors registered: Number of new investors registered per week, scaled to 0-100% based on its percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available weekly).
- 3) A-share turnover in RMB: Daily A-share turnover in RMB, scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 4) ChiNext turnover in RMB: Daily ChiNext turnover in RMB, scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 5) Northbound turnover growth rate (vs. three months ago): Growth rate of Stock Connect Northbound buy orders (period ending day RMB amount vs. three months ago), scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 6) Equity index futures turnover growth rate (vs. three months ago): Growth rate of A-share index futures trading turnover (period ending day RMB amount vs. three months ago), scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 7) RSI-30D: Relative Strength Index based on the CSI 300 over a 30-day period. Original data are scaled to 0-100% based on percentage away from high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 8) Number of limit-up A-shares: Number of stocks that hit 10% price trade limit-up per day, scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014 (available daily; we use weekly ending balance for analytical purposes).
- 9) Earnings estimate revision breadth: Based on Shanghai A Index owing to data availability, scaled to 0-100% based on the percentage away from its high and low levels since January 2014. It measures the number of sell-side stock analysts who raise their earnings estimates vs. the number of analysts who lower their estimates. This metric is more related to corporate fundamentals (available weekly).

Other items to keep in mind

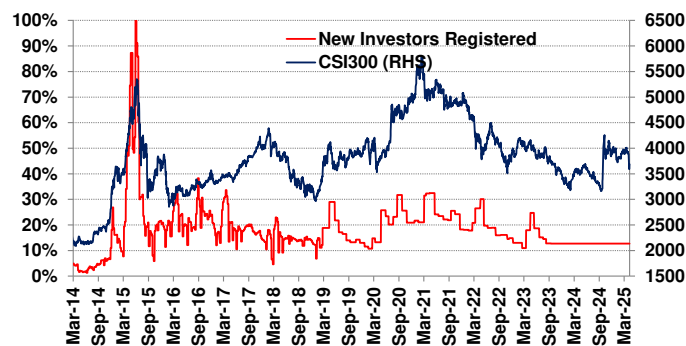

- The charts below show the scaled version of all these metrics as they are used in our MSASI compilation analysis.
- We use data from January 2014 to the present because some of the market-influencing factors were not fully developed before that, i.e., the Stock Connect Northbound program was only launched in November 2014.
- Some metrics have gone through regime shifts owing to regulatory changes, i.e., index futures trading, which became heavily regulated as part of market stabilization measures during the 2015 correction. We try to accommodate/normalize such shifts by looking at growth rates rather than absolute volume/value.
